

GUIDE 2 OF 2 · MOBILE

The app the crew carry.

One screen per page, in the order a painter actually taps them on a normal day.

FOR THE TRIAL

Danny — hand this to one painter with a real job on. Everything here happens on the phone; nothing needs a laptop on site.

WORKED THROUGH PJ-1042 · WHITFIELD, MAREWA RD

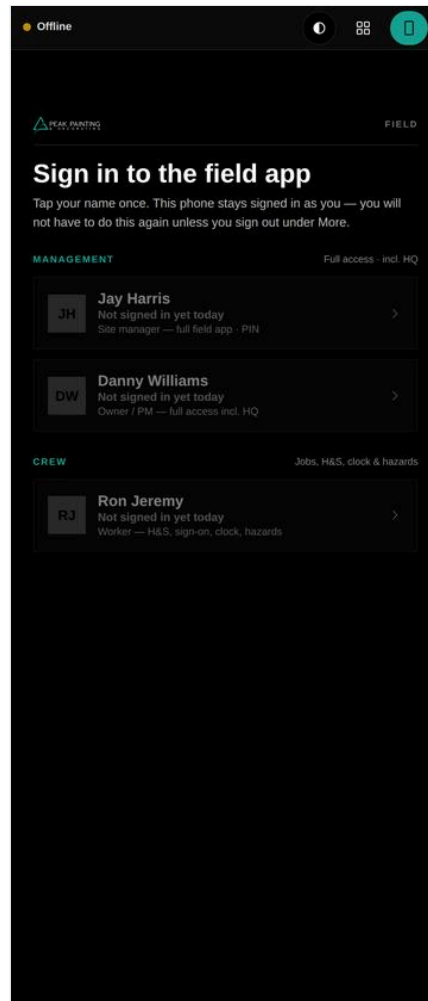

SEPTEMBER 2026 · v2

Three taps, once.

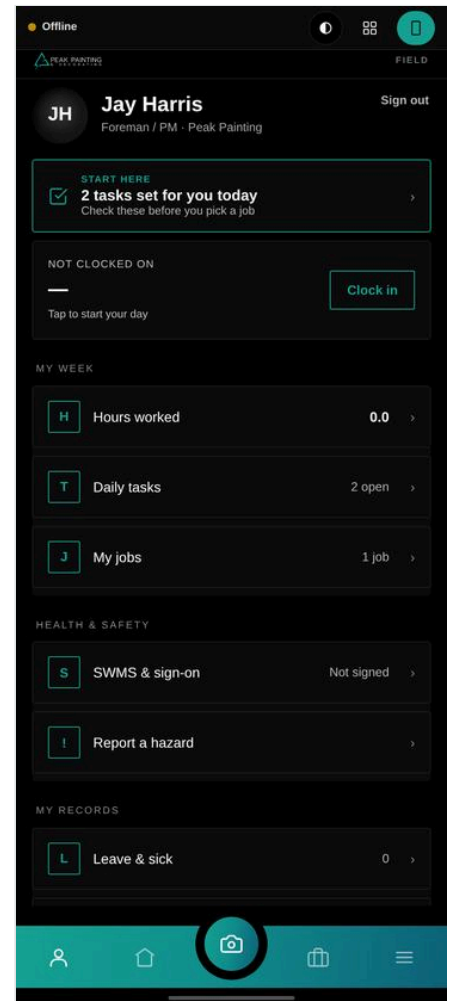

The phone stays signed in. A painter does this on day one and does not do it again unless they sign out.

1 · Open the app → Sign in

2 · Tap your own name

3 · Enter your PIN → your profile

The sign-in list is split in two: Management — Danny and anyone with full access, same phone app but nothing hidden and the HQ side reachable — and Crew, who get jobs, H&S, clock and hazards with no costs. The logo at the top of every screen is the way back.

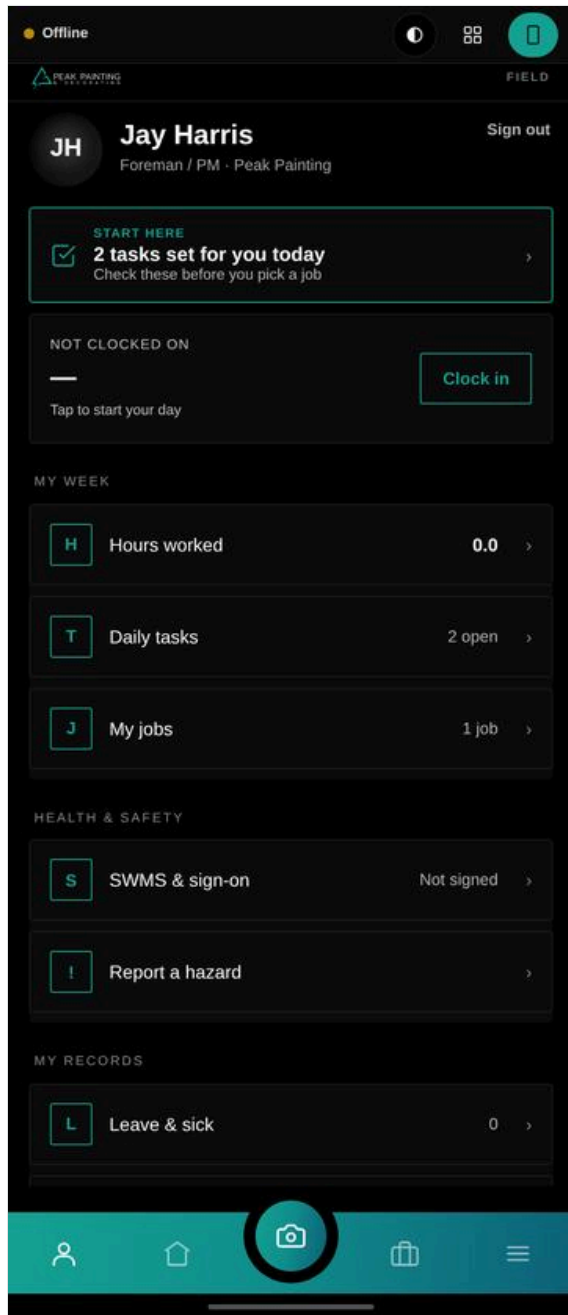

Your call, Danny: do you want PINs on every painter, or only the ones with costs visible?

02 · YOUR PROFILE

M O B I L E

Where the day starts.

Not a job list — the painter's own page. Hours this week, tasks you have set them, H&S, leave, notes and photos.

THE ORDER OF THE DAY

- 1 Start here at the top — if you have set them tasks it says how many and takes them straight there
- 2 If there are no tasks it points them at My jobs instead
- 3 Log any indirect time — travel, material pick-up, training
- 4 Pick the job they are working on
- 5 Clock on and sign the H&S before anything else

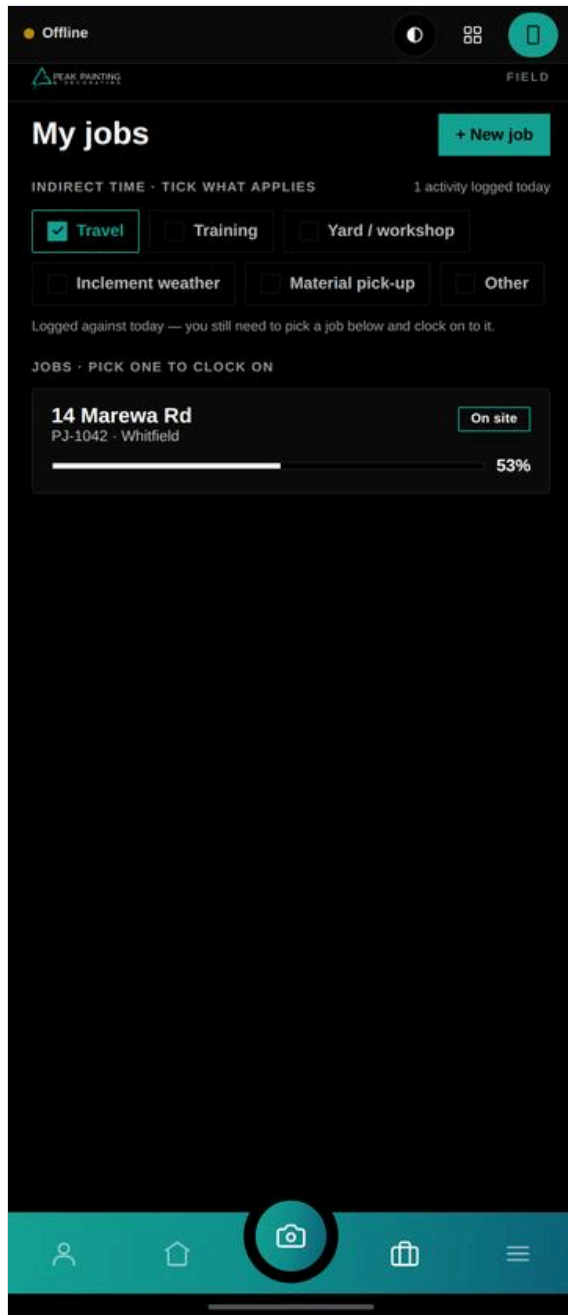

Your call: is the profile the right landing page, or would you rather they land on today's job?

03 · INDIRECT TIME

M O B I L E

Travel and pick-ups are ticks, not jobs.

Travel to a site over half an hour away, a Resene run first thing, a rained-off morning — tick it and it is logged against today. It does not clock them onto anything.

Ticked activities sit above the job list. The painter still has to pick a job below and clock onto it — indirect time and job time stay separate on the timesheet.

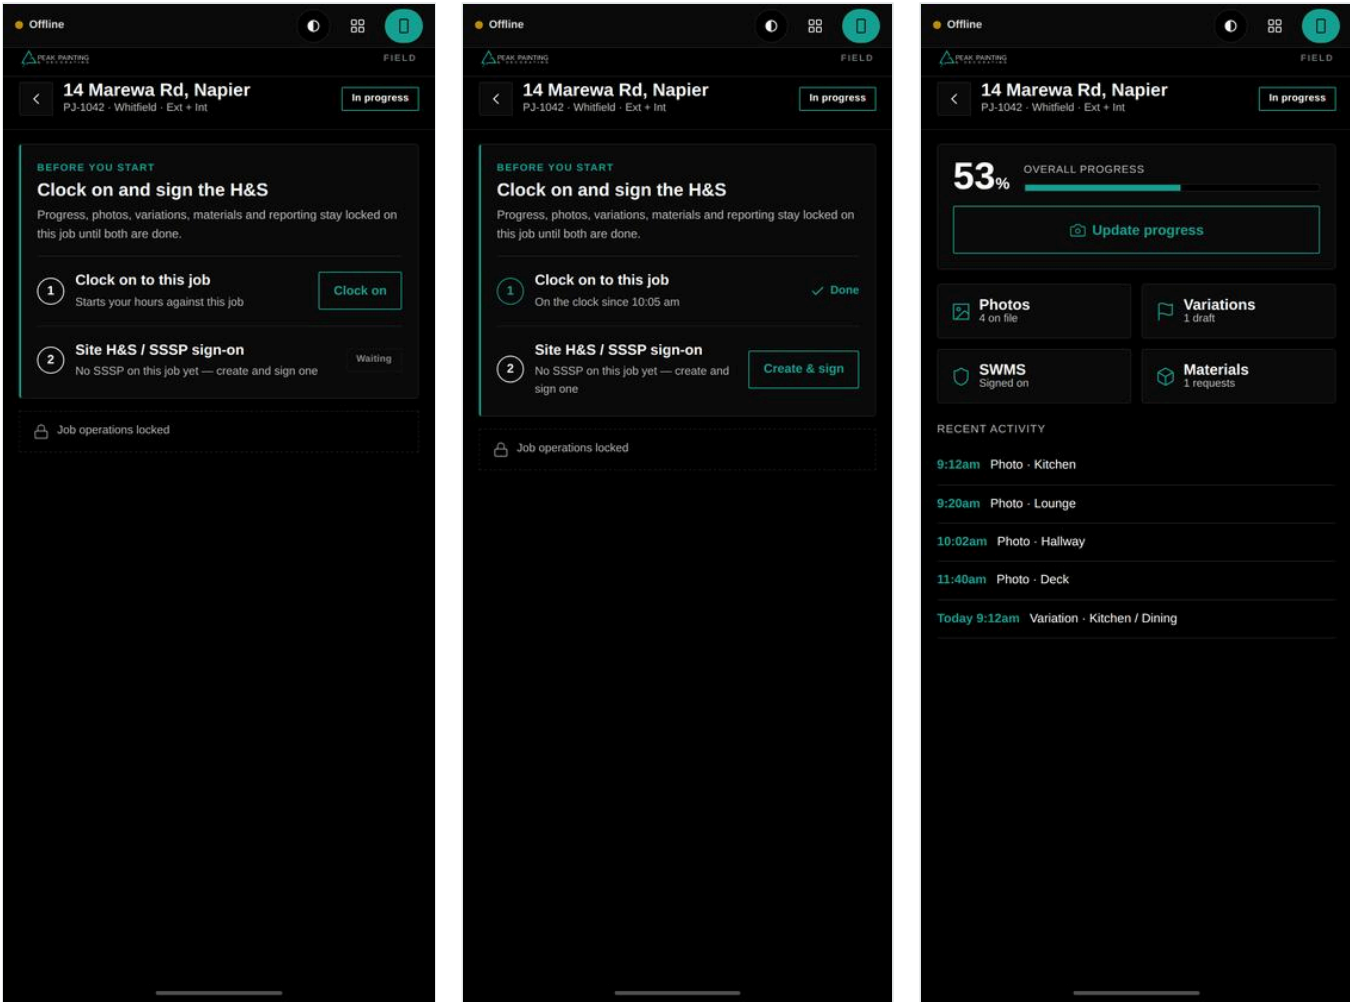

THE SIX

Travel · Training · Yard / workshop · Inclement weather · Material pick-up · Other

Your call: is that the right list, and should travel under 30 minutes be ticked at all?

No clock-on, no sign-on, no job.

Open a job and there are two steps and nothing else. Progress, photos, variations, materials and reporting stay locked until both are done. This is deliberate — it means every hour has a job against it and every painter on site has signed the SWMS.

Locked — step 2 waits for step 1

Clocked on — H&S now live

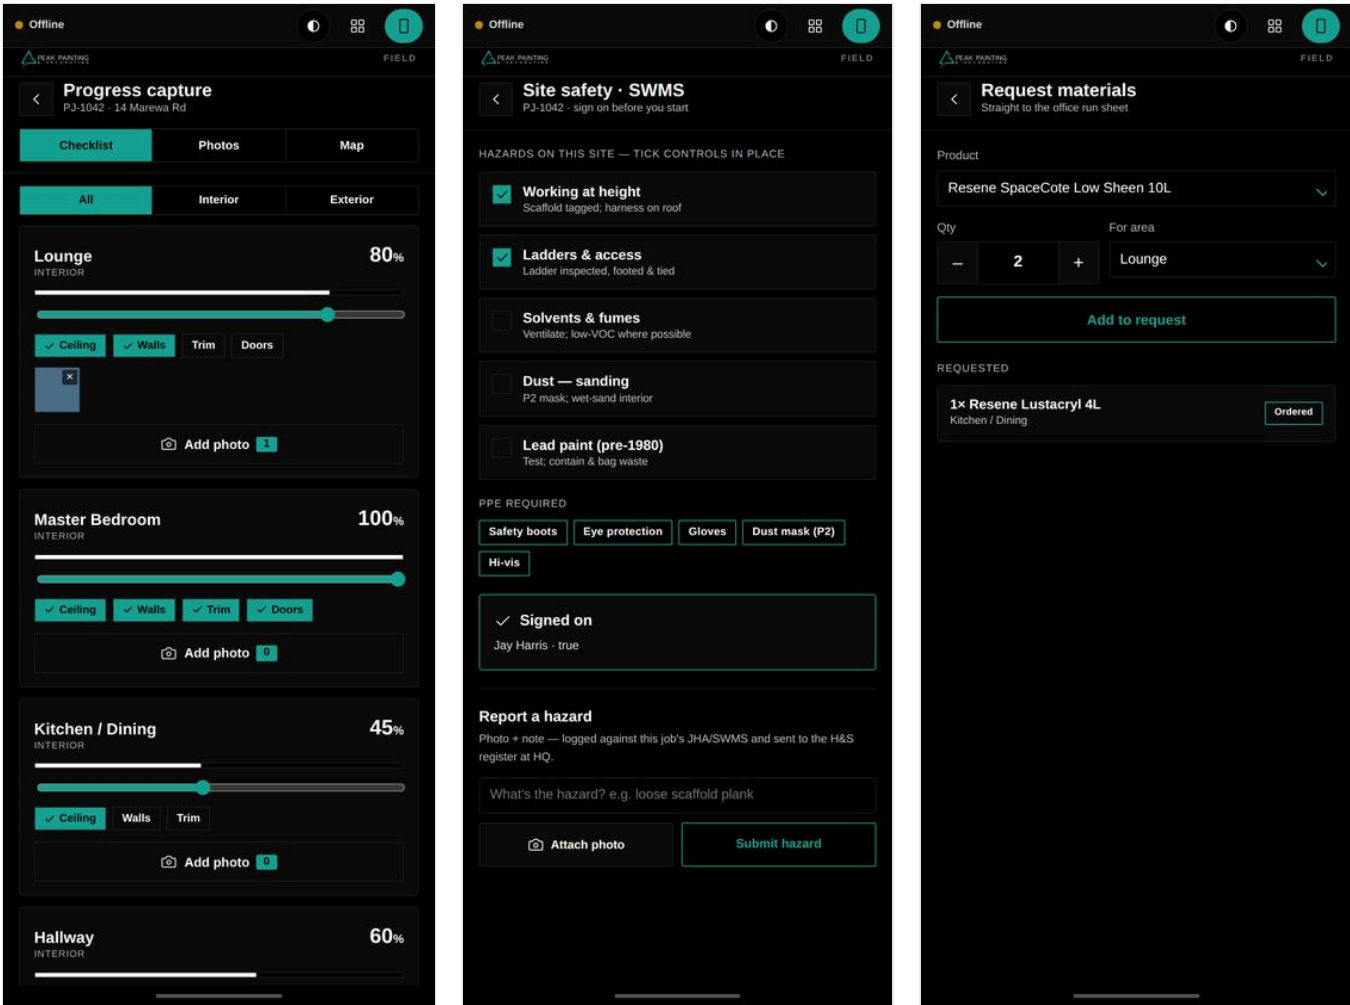

Both done — job unlocked

If there is no SSSP on the job yet the button reads Create & sign. Moving to a second site during the day clocks them off the first automatically and re-gates the new one.

Your call: is a hard lock right, or should a painter be able to look at a job without clocking on?

Progress, photos, extras.

Everything a painter does on site lands in HQ within seconds — no paperwork at the end of the week.

SWMS, sign-on and hazards

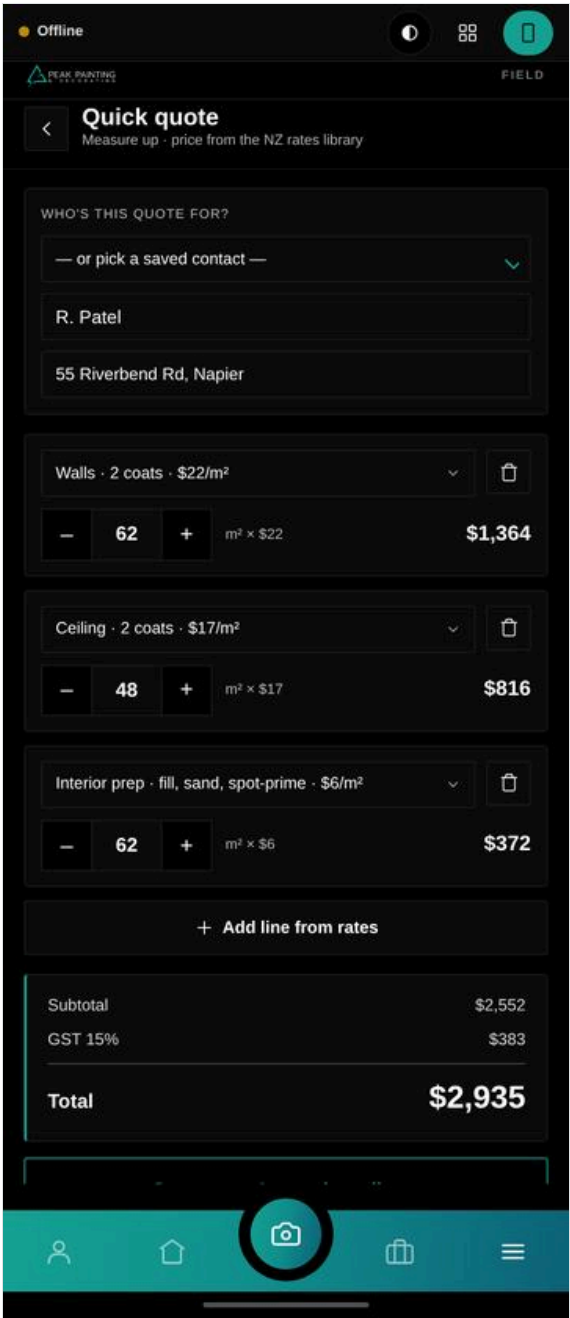

Request materials from site

Photos taken here show up on the job row on your dashboard, and against the job in Projects.

Your call: should painters be able to raise a variation themselves, or flag it for you to price?

Price a small job from the ute.

Same rates library as the office. Pick lines, type quantities, and it produces a quote you can hand over before you leave the driveway.

The quote goes back to HQ as a draft so nothing is priced twice and nothing gets lost between the ute and the office.

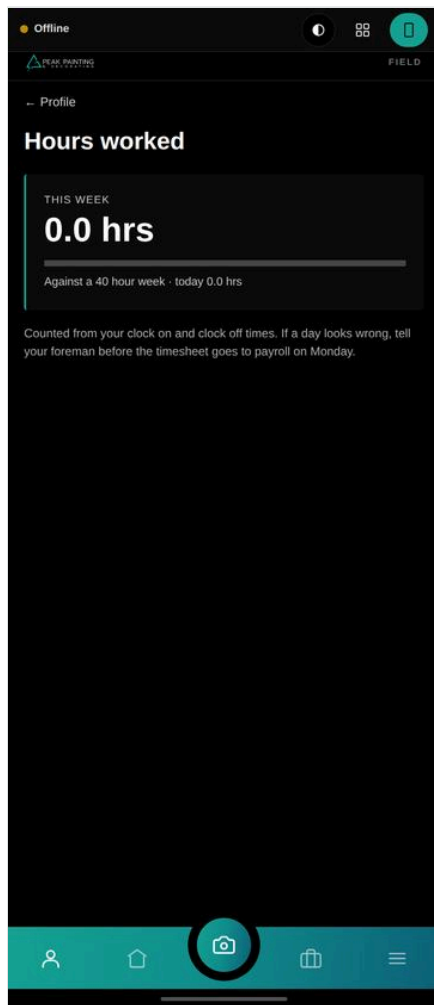

USE IT FOR

Repaints while you are already on site · add-ons the client asks about · anything under about $5k that does not need a full tender

Your call: who should be allowed to send a quick quote — you only, or foremen too?

The painter's own record.

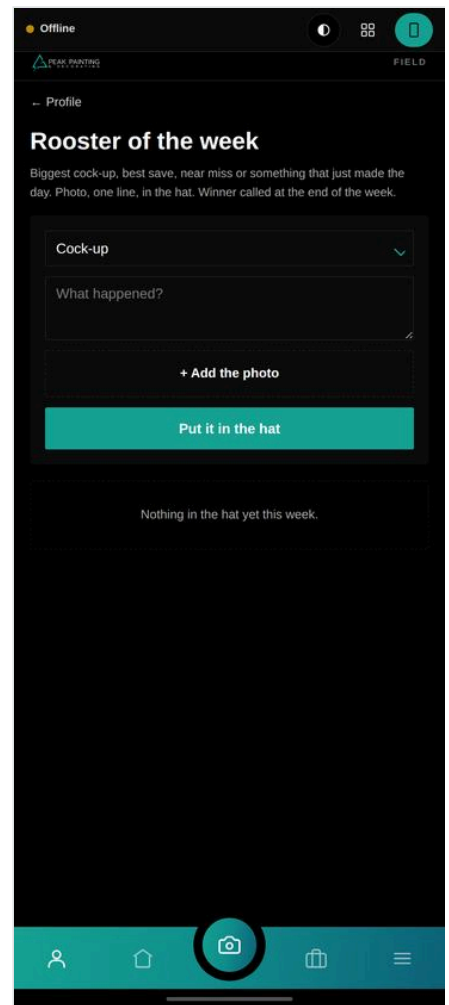

Everything they need to check without asking the office.

Hours, from their own clock-ons

Tasks you set them

Rooster of the week

Leave and sick requests come to you from the same screen. Rooster of the week is the cock-up / good-save photo board — end of week, crew votes. More → Sign off site for today clocks a painter out and clears their H&S sign-on in one tap.

Your call: weekly or monthly on the Rooster award, and who picks the winner?

Write on this page.

What the crew said, what did not work, what is missing.

THE SEVEN QUESTIONS, IN ORDER

- 01 PINs on every painter, or only some?
- 02 Is the profile the right landing page?
- 03 Is the indirect list right?
- 04 Is a hard clock-on / H&S lock right?
- 05 Raise variations, or flag them for you?
- 06 Who can send a quick quote?
- 07 Rooster — weekly or monthly, and who judges?
